

Growing Up Plain Among Conservative Wilburite Quakers: The Journey Of A Public Friend

 Quakers - Faith in action

Men not living to what they know, cannot blame God, that they know no more.
— William Penn, 1684-1718
Paradoxically, life is worth living for those who have something for which they will gladly give up life.
— J. H. Haste, 1888-1967
The likeness we bear to Jesus is more essential than our notions of Him.
— Swartzon Hest, 1793-1880
Simplicity is the name we give to our effort to free ourselves to give full attention to God's will, small voice.
— Lloyd Lee Wilbur, 1947
